Fine breezes under all Sail heading West saw nothing at sunset hauled down Jib Gallant sheets middle part under all Sail heading W by North and west at daylight washed off decks after breakfast the Capt and Master Lawrence had a quarrel all about nothing he told Master Lawrence to get up a table over the fore hatch. and told the B Stewards that she was going to break and the foremast leaked told me about it one or two days before but I thought it was a yarn. he asked him what sort of a table. he said yahctin hell you think. Mr L says he did not know: and that was the reason he asked. Mr Law told me to call the men. and then told me to stop until they got their breakfast and the Capt told me to call them but Master L told me not and asked the Capt if he should call them then before they got through. he said yes the trade an account of it was that Mr [illegible] this worthy Brother trying to dictate his orders the poor Jackass did not know that his name was Childs and belonged to a spunky race of beings. I said out to be mad with him but I think he is not worth taking notice of. besides all the rest he gave me such a good name. Worthy Brother. I should think he would be proud of me. for Worthy men are laudable for any eminent quality. particular for valour. I suppose if he only new the meaning of the word. he would not have told me so. but still for all that the biggest fools will hit right sometimes he treats Mr D & myself with the greatest respect to day. for it is if you please sir Mr L told him if he saw a good chance he would leave him when he got in port if not he would stick and leather him. The Capt and the sailes sometime ago and did not speak to me one but the third mate and Boat steerers and Mr L thought it was foolish to spend his breath to talk with a fool. and so he has not spoke to the Capt only when obliged to. I shall leave when we get in if not I have a chance to go on board of another Ship but other ways I shall be obliged to stop

Remarks on Shore January the first 1855

Well my friends I have commenced with the beginning of the year 1855. to try my luck on shore for a while. I do not know how I shall like it. but am resolved to try the Land for a short time, at any rate. although the Landsman say, that Sailors cannot get a living on shore; but Sailors you know have an Idiot in view; they think that they will not have to work so hard, when they get ashore as landsman in general have to do. talking about Sailors working I am a Sailor, I will not give in to any one. before a trial. the Sailors that intend going to sea for a living, are out of their elements when they get on shore. that is the reason they do not like work on land, but put a landsman on board of a Ship, and then see if a landsman likes work better than a Sailor

It is now evening, and I have enjoyed good health this first day of January so far, and have commenced work, and have got along finely, for a green hand, I think that it is hard work, to labor any way.

I must bid you all good night, hoping you will have quiet rest, and pleasant dreams, after the first pleasant day in January eighteen hundred and 55.

Tuesday Jan the 2nd

This day I have been at work, and have got along finely, and feel very well, after working about eight hours, went a half after supper I put little Isaac to bed, and then Obadiah & Elmirah, Hannah and myself went down to John P Davis's shopping, and I spent fifty four Cts, came home and went to bed

so ends this day

Wednesday the 3d

This day not so pleasant rather cloudy looks some like a storm I bought some of Rich Pork about 5.50 Cts worth, this evening salted it down. think some of commencing to keep house soon and then we can eat it so ends the day
